

Custom-made Special Profile

FOR A PERFECT FIT

Stainless Steel special profiles according to customers request and drawing

If you are working to standard specifications, off-the-rack profiles are probably your best option. If, however you are operating beyond conventional parameters, precision products tailored to your individual requirements are a far better choice. Our custom profiles can unlock interesting opportunities, from both an engineering and a commercial perspective. Compared to machined solutions, our approach delivers much higher levels of productivity, complemented by greater efficiency when it comes to the use of materials - more often than not.

Our customers are supplied with custom profiles that meet their specific needs. The customer can minimize the expenditure in its own production to an interesting price. In order to make the production of such customized products possible, our customers interact with us closely. Together, we determine whether one of our previously manufactured profiles can be adapted to your needs or whether we can work together at developing an entirely new product.

You can take the advantage of our 130 years' experience in order to develop together the most suitable special shape, which will be functional and the most cost effective product. We work in close dialogue with our customers, we are capable of producing customised profiles from all the materials used by our company - We are looking forward to assist you!
